Fuera de las rutas turísticas habituales, os proponemos una espléndida excursión de un día al Parque Natural de Redes. Declarado Parque Natural en 1996, y reconocido por la UNESCO como Reserva de la Biosfera en 2001.

Su riqueza ambiental se manifiesta en una multitud de paisajes y contrastes. Pueden observarse incluso formaciones de origen glaciar, como morrenas o circos, formas kársticas en cuevas, y amplios campos de pasto y montes

La acción de los ríos ha dado lugar a la aparición de valles abiertos que forman grandes vegas en sus fondos o a los impresionantes desfiladeros de roca caliza, como el del río Alba o el de los Arrudos, principales destinos de las familias amantes del senderismo. Uno de los lugares más impresionantes del parque se halla en su zona alta: de fácil acceso desde el pueblo de Bezanés y aislada por los contrafuertes montañosos, a 1.215 m. se encuentra la Vega de Brañagallones.

En el Parque de Redes podemos encontrar osos pardos, urogallos, lobos, rebecos y ciervos. El hayedo es la formación vegetal dominante en los montes de Redes, aunque estos albergan importantes bosques de roble albar.

Outside of the usual tourist routes, we suggest a splendid day trip to the Redes Natural Park. Declared Natural Park in 1996, and recognized by UNESCO as a Biosphere Reserve in 2001.

Its environmental richness is manifested in a multitude of landscapes and contrasts. You can even see formations of glacial origin, such as moraines or cirques, karst shapes in caves, and wide fields of grass and mountains

The action of the rivers has given rise to the appearance of open valleys that form large fertile plains at its bottoms or to the impressive limestone gorges, such as the Alba or Los Arrudos gorges, main destinations for families who love hiking. One of the most impressive places in the park is in its upper area: easily accessible from the town of Bezanés and isolated by the mountain buttresses, at 1,215 m. is the Vega de Brañagallones.

In the Redes Natural Park we can find brown bears, grouse, wolves, chamois and deer. Beech is the dominant plant formation in the mountains of Redes, although these are home to important forests of sessile oak.
